

ANATHEMA

Volume I Issue V

Free

October MMXIII

ANTI-RACIST CALL TO ACTION

At 11am on Saturday, October 19th the Philadelphia Residents Against Racism and others will be gathering to confront neo-nazis gathering at the Thorfinn Karlsefni Statue at Boathouse Row in Fairmount Park. The Leif Erickson Day Celebration, hosted by the racist Keystone State Skinheads, begins on Lemon Hill at noon with a march down to the viking statue where Antifa types are typically already assembled between their wreath-laying ambitions and the statue. The event has previously been attended by members of such hate groups as the Council of Conservative Citizens, The American 3rd Position/American Freedom Party, Volksfront, The Vinlanders Social Club, and the Hated Skins. This year there is an express call for it to be a peaceful protest, which may or may not be enough to disrupt their gathering.

[onepeoplesproject \[dot\] com](http://onepeoplesproject[dot]com)

[leifericsondayprotest \[dot\] wordpress \[dot\] com](http://leifericsondayprotest[dot]wordpress[dot]com)

[8=D.keystonestateskinheads\[dot\]wordpress\[dot\]com](http://8=D.keystonestateskinheads[dot]wordpress[dot]com)

MARCELLUS TREE SIT CONTINUES

Three weeks in, "Hellbender" continues to hold it down in the trees of a proposed fracking site in the Loyola State Forest of Pennsylvania. Expressing the failure of asking nicely in an early update, the tree sitter holds to the necessity of more brazen action in defense of the mostly unfragmented ecosystem and rock run watershed. The forest rangers have yet to confront the tree sitter, having not been able to find them for at least the first week.

The company planning to drill, Anardarko Petroleum Corporation, have planned on implementing 26 well-pads, miles of pipelines, access roads, and other associated infrastructure to the wild and highly revered Loyalsock, threatening numerous species in the area. According to the Marcellus Shale Earth First!

The very future of life on Earth is in danger. Human activities—from hunting to habitat destruction—have already driven countless species to extinction, and the process is only accelerating. The destruction of the Earth and its sustainable indigenous cultures has led to tragedy in every corner of the globe.

(continued on last page)

ALF MINK LIBERATION

via Bite Back

Last night, the Animal Liberation Front opened hundreds of cages at the Rykola mink farm located at 557 Colver Road in Ebensburg, Pennsylvania. We lost count of the number of wild animals freed into their natural environment, due to the animals being housed in atrocious conditions, four to tiny cob-webbed cages. Words can not describe the filth and blinding stench of this farm.

As expected, the animals wasted no time escaping from their barren prisons into the natural world. In addition to opening cages, we destroyed hundreds of breeding cards, many with notations of price, which ran from $1,000 up to $10,000 per animal.

We want to reiterate, as several recent ALF communiques have, the ease of animal liberation. We possess no specialized skill set or expensive tools. A sense of determination and a desire for justice go a long way.

HEALTH IS IN YOU

The occupy Philadelphia reunion has come and gone with little notice, with participants returning to a space that was held for the sake of holding it, celebrating a "historical moment" when nothing tangible was accomplished, nor preceded anything substantial over the two years since. It is that instant nostalgia so pervasive in the digital age, looking back on moments not long past, and still not reflecting. It can be likened to photocopied efforts of the anti-war movement, carrying on in the same manner, and having the same non-impact on different wars for decades. The preemptive protests to the Iraq War, in 2002 and 2003, set precedents in size but not in accomplishments, as the United States continues to intervene militarily there. And while the occupy moniker still serves as a coordinating point in this town, it is only to reproduce the same sort of submissive acts.

These activist identities, worshiping false victories (historically and presently), perpetuate nothing. Nothing, except maybe the distancing of themselves (continued on page 4)

SOME ACTION REPORTS

A major power line along the border of the United States and Canada was sabotaged by removing nuts from two of its four legs more than a month ago. In the author's communique written this month, they offer solidarity with Jerry Koch, Marie Mason, Maddy Pfeiffer, the Informal Anarchist Federation/ International Revolutionary Front, and others, as well as speculating that the tower's collapse could have created the power outage causing the shutdown of the high-speed Amtrak train between Boston and NYC.

Philadelphia transit police are upset that people witnessing an officer getting beat up by an alleged fare jumper inside the subway system just stood by and watched without calling 911, including one person who pulled out a phone to video record the altercation. Boo hoo.

The last month has seen coordinated animal liberations at fur farms throughout the country, the slashing of vehicle tires at a dairy company, and the drenching of company involved in the fur and leather trades with red paint; both in the northwest. The communique for the latter event conveys that their small act serves as a starting point to build confidence and experience, as well as a catalyst to inspire others into action.

The Informal Anarchist Federation continues to proliferate internationally with the bombing of prison guard resources in Chile, an explosive attack against a cathedral in Spain, the burning down of a saw mill at a hunting resort in Russia, and a parcel bomb sent to the chief prosecutor in the case against the Conspiracy Cells of Fire in Greece, recently.

Finally, a one-thousand strong Brazilian teacher's strike erupted into a riot that saw incendiary attacks on busses, police, city hall, and more earlier this month. Afterward, the teacher's expressed unconditional support for the black bloc that helped defend them from the police.

BELGIUM: SMALL DISORDER NEWS

Via Contra Info

Attack on the construction sites of Power – State and Capital are continuously constructing to adapt the environment to the needs of control and exploitation. From new transport axes for the economy, over offices buildings to prisons and new industrial sites: the cancer is now everywhere. In Charleroi, some surgeons used their incendiary scalpel to cut out two tumors: two construction site engines were destroyed by fire.

Communication interrupted – Around midnight, a big telecommunications installation in Koningslo, north of Brussels, was destroyed by arson. It seems fire has been put to the cables of the installation; flames went up 50 meters high. Firemen spent several hours to put out the fire. The arson interrupted telecommunications of the operators Base and Mobistar on the entire area of Neder-over-Hembeek, Vilvorde and Haren. The installation included also antennas for the 3G network. Damage is quite big: disturbances are said to continue for several months. One of the veins which are feeding the system, the telecommunications, was thus cut.

Incendiary vengeance – A police car was burned in front of the police station of Mortsel. Officers assisted the scene, seeing helplessly how their work instrument went up in flames. Two years ago, a youngster was beaten to death in the cell of this police station. Another fire attack against this station occurred just after the family of the youngster released the video footage of the killing inside the station; this attack was, of course, silenced by Power.

Cutting industry rather than trees – In the area of Dinant, a truck and a van belonging to the same company of forest exploitation were put on fire and destroyed. Recently, another forest cutting vehicle of another company was attacked with fire. It seems that, since permits were given to transform even more forest into industrial wood production sites, opponents are attacking directly those responsible for the environmental destruction.

As long as there will be money... those who fight this world based on power and finance will continue to directly attack its concrete incarnations. In Louvain, unknown persons broke the entrance of a bank and ravaged the interior.

Translated by/from Hors Service, anarchist journal, n° 40, 12th of September 2013, Brussels.

ELF TORCH BULLETPROOF VEST MANUFACTURING PLANT (INDONESIA) via 325.nostate.net

The police are the enemy . This is our final statement that is not negotiable. Police are not born to be friends, as individuals and as an institution, and can not be excluded from the list of enemies that must be addressed by for our attacks. As an institution and as individuals, the police goal is to protect civilization and the exploitation it is doing to the earth.

The objective of the police -as well as the other repressive instruments- is to secure the money and investment interests for the sake of the anthropocentric way of life as it is today. The police are not for representing our interests. Instead, the police are one of the thousands of faces of outrage alive today. Police must be attacked, as hard as possible.

For their loyal services as guard dogs for the domestication of life, they are equipped with combat equipment that is used against free will and the aspirations of wildlife where the judiciary and the rule of law are totally absent. They are equipped with weapons, armor and bulletproof vests. The devices are manufactured so that the pigs can act with confidence in the face of the war that is addressed to their masters.

But they were wrong. The pigs have a totally wrong idea if they think that we are not brave enough to send our attack right to their essential sectors. As of this moment, when we put two jerry cans containing 5 liters of petrol and 5 liters of diesel equipped with an automatic trigger. Triggers that we have prepared so that we can move away from the scene of the attack and make them not be able to catch any of us. Which is more than enough time for us to let nature protects us by removing all traces of our feet.

We tried a new step to radicalize our attacks and extend the effects of the damage from any blows that we direct to the enemy. Incendiary devices placed at a factory during the early hours on Monday, September 23, located on Canal Street Suryani, Babakan Village, District Babakan Ciparay, Bandung, West Java.

The reason? This factory manufactures bulletproof vests for cops and army. This plant is one of the sources for the production of war equipment for these pigs. Bullet-proof vests to protect police and soldiers when they open fire on the enemy, open fire on us and on our brothers. That's why, this place is burning, charred, and this is the purpose of this action.

Together with these actions, we send our respectful salute to the combatants in other parts of the world and other places who without hesitation attack as much as possible. Salute to the joint actions undertaken by CCF Russia and the Russian ELF. Also the relentless attack from combatants Amigo de la Tierra – FAI in Argentina. Also the multiple attacks by the brave ones of CCF and ICR in Project Phoenix.

This action also is our warm greetings and hugs to the brave individuals who were abducted by the state but continue to wage war whilst their physical movements are limited. To Gabriel Pombo da Silva, Marco Camenisch, Hans Niemeyer, Walter Bond, the combatants of CCF Imprisoned Members Cell and the prisoners in Greece, Italy and Chile that we can not mention one by one, but they are always in our hearts.

Bring down the civilization
Wild Life, now!

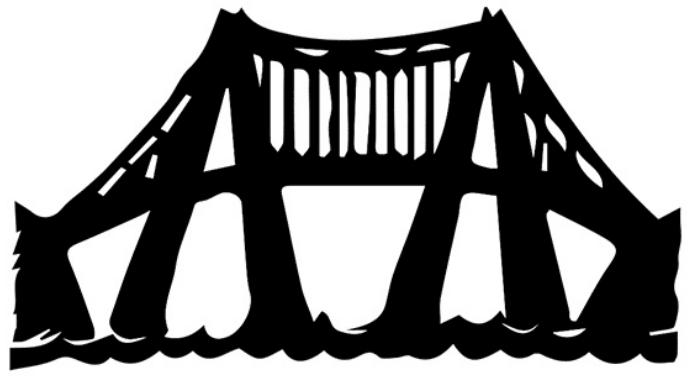

A NATIONAL DAY AGAINST POLICE

The 18th National Day of Protest to Stop Police Brutality is on October 22nd, with protests as close as NYC and DC. Recently, a federal judge declared 'stop and frisk' tactics utilized by the police as unconstitutional due to its targeting of minorities, which has become a hot topic in New York City mayoral politics. But the vague defining of 'reasonable suspicion' is hardly the concern, ultimately, let alone some electoral politics. The New Jersey residents who were verbally accosted due to their race and all but run out of town by Philadelphia police late last month, or even a former Philadelphia cop who felt totally demeaned after a very confrontational stop and frisk episode targeted him, begins to speak volumes about the policy of policing in general. While I've already written articles on the topic in this medium previously, addressing the violence edicts of the police on the general population, I'll suffice it to say that a response is long overdue. And some sort of legal presidings, brought about by the ACLU and operating in the rational of those that impose the policing will not be a solution. Police are inherently brutal, and are vastly familiar with the language of violence; perhaps, in fact, it is the only language they will understand. ★ from those they seek to recruit. That is not to say that mass organizing is even necessarily effective in achieving freedom, but that does seem to be their goal. Of course, that requires a certain faith in achieving a unified mentality or at least manipulating it into existence.

(Health is in you continued)

In that vein, Philly's Rising Tide has moved their reoccurring pickets from a TD Bank headquarters outside of town to actual bank branches throughout center city, perhaps hoping to draw more attention to the financial institution's backing of the dreaded tar sands project in the midwest. Reminding me of the dismissive attitudes to a picket I saw occur a few years ago, before those nearby even realized it was nothing more than an advertising ploy for a new television show, suggests the likelihood of them recruiting numbers no matter how noble the cause. I truly hope Rising Tide is not so misled that standing outside of a local bank branch with a sign on a Saturday is likely to affect the decisions made by the wealthy shareholders nowhere near present, at the very least.

BLACK BRIDGE INTERNATIONAL

Black Bridge International is a project designed to help anarchists support prisoners in countries other than their own. Due to prison regulations and other restrictions, many prisoners cannot receive international mail. Thus, Black Bridge International: a network of collectives and individuals who will print out and mail international letters into prisons.

Each group maintains a list of prisoners they support, and you can choose to either have your letter go to every prisoner on the group's list or to an individual prisoner. BBI groups will go over your letter to make sure that nothing you say will keep your letter from getting into the jail.

To write imprisoned comrades in Greece:

blackbridgegreece@riseup.net

To write imprisoned comrades in the USA:

blackbridgeus@riseup.net

To write imprisoned comrades in Mexico:

blackbridgemexico@riseup.net

To write imprisoned comrades in Spain:

blackbridgespain@riseup.net ★

Ultimately, even when these actions defy the law, it is typically only to make a request of those holding power over our heads. And if those requests were met, it would just be to draw attention away from those same state and corporate powers expanding their exploitation in other sectors; a compromise meant to maintain their authority. For those that seek to legitimately challenge their stranglehold on the earth and its peoples, these profit and power-driven mercenaries must simply be destroyed.

While those social matters that tend toward the interpersonal may not simply be halted from proliferation through explosives (much like a popular essay title suggests), a bit of violence extended onto those that act out the language of violence upon bowing heads may give them pause, perhaps have them reconsider their position. Additionally, as those heads of state and capital remain unreachable at the helm of the steamrolling Leviathan (as is their

NATURAL OR SOCIAL DISASTER?

Revisiting an open letter from your masters about the Fukushima disaster in Japan and other things

Thousands and thousand dead or missing. Millions evacuated. So far. Entire cities swept away. It's almost as if it wasn't an earthquake, but a nuclear bomb, that struck Japan. It's almost as if it wasn't a tsunami, but a war, that laid waste to the houses. Well, okay, in fact, it was. But despite what some of you may think, the enemies who struck so hard and who still continue to threaten are not the earth and sea. Though we've taught you to see nature as an entity, a being that may use such tools to seek revenge, and so a hostile being, that's just one of our many con jobs. The war that has been going on for centuries is not a war between humanity and the natural environment. We just made up that story to keep you all in line. We are the enemy; we are the war.

But nature is one of our main battlefields. We have caused floods by transforming the atmospheric climate with our industrial activities. We have destroyed riverbanks by cementing their beds and deforesting their shores. We have made bridges collapse by building them with shoddy material so that we could underbid the competition and win contracts. We have swept away entire villages and towns by building houses in areas we knew were at risk. We have contaminated the planet by building nuclear power plants. We have bred ourselves in jackals and vultures by seeking profit everywhere. We have neglected taking precautionary measures, because our concern was to open new shopping malls, highways, subway lines and sports stadiums. But we couldn't have done it without you. You are the ones who have let this all happen over and over again, by delegating the decisions that concern your lives to us. And we thank you...

But, of course, we did it all for you. We have devastated the world so that you can move faster, eat faster, work faster, live faster. And isn't speed what you all really want these days? So how dare you complain when you notice that you can also die faster? Well, go ahead and complain. It doesn't hurt us, so long as you continue in your passivity and obedience.

But realize that there really aren't any purely natural disasters these days; they are all social disasters. And you might as well accept them. It's the price of all the speed and convenience. If you don't want to be the victim of the poisons that escape and the shoddy structures that collapse in unforeseen earthquakes and unusual floods, if you don't want to die of unknown viruses, then you are going to have to stop sitting on your asses; you are going to have to recognize the war we have declared against you all, and act against the real enemies: the way of life, the values, the habits, the culture and the passive indifference and obedience that we have imposed on you and that most of you don't even question (and we are so grateful for that...), in other words this society and all of its institutions. But it is our hope that you will continue to show no inclination to imagine other possibilities for living or to fight against the present reality, that you will continue to be willing to die from the existence we have arranged and imposed rather than threaten our power and our profits. For the good of the economy and for social peace (which is our ongoing victory in this war), please continue to obey, and die quietly as you have always lived...

Thank you, your masters

necessity), it becomes necessary to destroy them like the cogs that they mimic, and every structure that shelters their purpose.	Echoing the calls by the Conspiracy Cells of Fire for "a sharing of experiences necessary for the creation of explosive and incendiary devices, time delay devices, the functioning of firearms, etc." they included a short explanation of their crude device. Consisting of a water bottle filled with combustible, a sponge soaked with combustible rubber banded to the water bottle, and some magic candles (the birthday variety that never go out) stuck into the sponge, creating a time delay device. Alternatively, they not some companer@s as having used incense, instead of candles, with a number of matches surrounding it at its base. ★
It is has been acknowledged that assassinations carry more substance than any sort of suicide, so perhaps the self-flagellation beneath the foot falls of authority can begin growing into something more. But what are these declarations without a means, you ask?
Which is exactly what one anarchist group in Mexico contended after their explosive action earlier this year.

BURNING THE CASSETTE (continued)

II: OBJECTIVES

Destruction is not a metaphysical idea. Destruction consists of going into a place and wrecking something, but the process that can allow us to carry out this action is a process that must involve us in our totality, as complete human beings.

-Alfredo M. Bonanno, Destruction And Language, 1996

Your kitchen sink is not dispensing enough water. Every other water outlet in your house has sufficient pressure. The Problem must be with your kitchen sink alone. You investigate and find that the Problem is the filter, clogged with years of accumulated minerals. Suddenly, you remove the filter and place it on your kitchen counter and stare at it, forever. This is the Problem.

What do we want? Who are we? These are well-intentioned questions, requiring a lifetime to answer. Unfortunately, there is very little time for any of us to answer them. As individuals, anarchists want different things out of life. As a group, some anarchists want the same things. We are insurrectionary anarchists. What do we want? (See appendix)

The destruction of the Empire is our objective. We wish to see the complete shutdown of the capitalist economy and the proliferation of self sustaining communities that are completely independent from the system and its networks. These communities will sustain themselves on their own without our meddling. The networks that feed the system its commodities and edgy must no longer function. Data must stop flowing. All control mechanisms should be attacked until they are gone. People should be allowed to determine their own lives, however they see fit. Their lifestyle and moral choices have nothing to do with our objectives. We merely wish to have our chance, free from monolithic control mechanisms.

Who of us knows what we actually want with life? Our longing is indescribably, our existence is filled with emptiness. Do we just want to play on the swing at the farm all day? Maybe. But we also want to feel a sense of purpose. There are many types of anarchists, but one objective of anarchism as a whole is the end of capitalism. If anyone who calls themselves an anarchist ever hopes to achieve this objective, they must stop staring at the filter sitting on the kitchen sink and address the Problem.

Unfortunately, being an anarchist has become synonymous with being a hipster. The definitions, objectives, and goals of anarchism have become as nebulous as the definition of the hipster. Every intensity that an anarchist generates is incorporated into the Spectacle in the same manner that fashions are incorporated into the arsenal of the hipster. Everything grows out of focus once it is incorporated into the Spectacle. The hipster is the walking receptor for diffused potency, all assimilated culture, and all captured intensity. The hipster is a punk, a democrat, a proletarian, a junky, and a politician. The hipster now has the ability to be an anarchist,

APPENDIX:

WHAT IS INSURRECTIONARY ANARCHISM?

There are many answers to this question. We will attempt to keep it simple.

As insurrectionary anarchists, we are against centralized authority and the State in all of its nefarious manifestations. This includes all forms of representational democracy. We are against all forms of totalitarianism, including the green variety. Every government is a centralized authority, the crystallized manifestation of power. We are against government and all of its projects even community projects. The micro and the macro must be considered as one and the same.

We are against capitalism. Capitalism is not just the flow of commodities, the consumption of commodities, the production of commodities, or the selling of commodities. Capitalism is also the people involved in intentionally planning and expanding the market economy across the planet. Just as we are against the multiform manifestations of the State (the courts, the police, the army, the school), so are we against every manifestation of capitalism (newspapers, television, the internet, trade unions, multinational corporations). Any resistance movement that has a symbiotic relationship with capitalism or the State is a movement that ultimately bolsters the strength of both. For this reason, we are against all mass-unions and reform movements. Our opposition comes from outside capitalism, not within it. This being-outside capitalism is mental just as it is physical.

We are against the nuclear family, being that is a worker-reproduction unity. We are not against two parents and their children or what they do to survive. We are against the image of the family that is created by capitalism. The family with a house, two cars, a full fridge, and a big television is a false family created by consumers. Credit is what has allowed the untenable illusion of the nuclear family to persist. The capitalist illusion of the nuclear family is artificial and should not exist.

Every politician who claims to represent us is our enemy. Anyone who imposes a representative upon us is our enemy. Any political party that shares powers with the other parties is our enemy. We oppose fascism, the unrestrained and unrestricted projection of centralized authority. We oppose every church and religion that promotes subservience to the State.

We believe that every asylum and prison should be destroyed without exception. Just like the churches and workplaces, asylums and prisons are places where the living go to die. We are against the capitalist conception of work but we are not against providing for ones immediate needs.

We are against those who fight for peace while ignoring the fact that they murder while doing so. We are against the ideology of non-violence, the neutralized of resistance. we champion neither non-violence nor its illusory opposite. We oppose al false dualities created by capitalist consciousness. We are against every nation and the patriotism they create within their subjects. Insurrectionary anarchists have no allegiance to a nation. Nor have we any allegiance to a race or a people. We never attempt to equate the male to the female, or the female to the male. The reign of one or the other is a reign we will never accept. There is no restrictive system imposed from above that we will follow or obey. No delegate will ever act for us, no representative will ever speak for us, no vanguard will ever fight for us. We act for ourselves, provide for ourselves, and speak for ourselves. We champion neither the farm nor the expropriation. We believe in survival, health, and self sufficiency, whether that is in the form of homegrown or stolen tomatoes. We may use money, but we must never forget our desire to burn it.

The insurrectionary anarchist does not posit or proscribe a future economic system. There will be no economy if the insurrectionary anarchist is successful. There is no blueprint for the future egalitarian society. It will take shape of its own, out of necessity. We will be able to influence the geographical area we will live in, but our reach will extend no further than those who trust and live with us.

We can say what we are against. What we wish to create must be kept a secret. We will tell only those who create it with us. It is essential that every insurrectionary anarchist create something. It is not essential that we tell everyone about it. A fire should be visible. Lighting a fire should not be.

minus the objectives. The incorporation of anarchism into the Spectacle has made the clarification of objectives urgently necessary. Without a firm commitment to the se objectives, the anarchist will be stuck forever in the flows of spectacular delusion.

The hipster is a neutralized body. Our first task, before meeting any of our objectives, is to become a potent body. A potent body is a free body, aware of itself as such. A potent body can act with a purpose that is not dictated by the pushing and pulling of cultural and economic flows. Cultural flows keep the body fixated on glamorous, seductive distractions. Economic flows keep the body fixated on wages, rent, security, and bank accounts. A potent body intentional removes itself from these flows in order to have the time and freedom to stop them from functioning. Beneath the clothing, the accessories, and the image, we will find our true body. The body is our. We do not mean this metaphorically. The body is our only weapon and in regards to our objectives, it has a precise use. The Problem we are facing is not abstract, it is physical. the flow regulators, the control mechanisms, the economy, and the information networks can only be destroyed physically. We must discover how to use our bodies to hinder, disrupt, and destroy these physical systems.

But who really is an anarchist anymore? A child of the upper classes, living a bourgeois lifestyle, is an anarchist. A child of the lower classes, living in poverty, is an anarchist. What separates them? The class lines are blurring as well, and the elites have been granted the title of anarchist. In this horrid stew pot of ability, the only people who are anarchists are the ones who attack the Empire. The rest are bourgeois in togas, little Roman subjects, potential magistrates, and decadent hipsters. Let us make it clear: to be an anarchist is to fight against a clear enemy. Do not mistake the bourgeois for anything other than what they are: frightened Romans attempting to make the world safe, uniform, and comfortable.

They are not anarchists even if they live in a communal house or speak the lingo. They find that talking seriously about using the body to destroy is in poor taste, constitutes bad manners, and is overly aggressive. They are shit. Their posh, green, sustainable bourgeois manners are shit. Their sensibilities are as feeble as their broken imaginations. Let them implode into the depths of their politeness and feigned radicalness. If they ever become concerned with anything besides themselves, we will be surprised. They are their own Problem. Forget them.

We will be seen as criminal destructive, violent, and dangerous by our enemies, but their condemnation of our actions will reveal them for what they are. These anarchists-in-name will not help us accomplish our objectives, they will attempt to incorporate us into what keeps them enslaved.

...continued next issue...

They also "stand in solidarity with local communities fighting back, both human and non-human."

As can be readily ascertained by a look around us, accidents are a statistical inevitability. And the larger the scale the production, the larger the scale of the repercussions. The British Petroleum disaster in the Gulf, and the Fukushima catastrophe in Japan, are not isolated incidents. Anadarko's track record is, in itself, weak. They have spilled 12,000 gallons of carcinogenic drilling mud in nearby Sprout State Forest, repeatedly failed to report faulty well casings, evaded responsibility for the death of eleven workers during the BP oil spill itself, and has shown an inability to maintain their waste water containment pits. Certainly no company pursuing profit over that which inevitably needs to be exploited for its gains can be trusted to sustain it in a meaningful way. As such, it would be asinine to expect Anadarko to maintain the integrity of an ecologically important forest such as the Loyalsock.

So comes a proposal from MSEF! for an action camp during the week of October 27th – November 3rd in Northeastern Pennsylvania. While it is certainly a belabored process against a growing practice, only one camp in one forest, and only addresses one method of resource extraction, it is at least a beginning. The workshops proposed, in fact, will be favoring skills that help to physically halt the expansive death march of civilization, on however small a scale. Still, little will be solved by continuing in such a fashion.

One hopes that we see a further escalation of nonlinear, playful tactics stateside in this war against our lives, flirting with the guerrilla's sensibilities without the certain trappings of their militancy. Passion and intensity must blossom in creative and autonomous ways in order to destroy, rather than resist, the rulers, exploiters, moralists, and their various enforcers, that seek to lord over us. ★

Marcellus Shale Earth First!

Fall Action camp

-----October 27th – November 3rd-----

Defend the Loyalsock!

Workshops Include: biocentrism, tree climbing, anti-oppression, backwoods skills, cultural sensitivity in the region, direct action trainings, plant & tree ID, health & safety during actions, backwoods games, stealth, know your rights, pods, activist media, demobilize bulldozer during zombie apocalypse & more!

For directions & more info: www.marcellusshaleearthfirst.org